

SEEK New Zealand Leadership Change – Rob Clark pursuing SEEK's vision and purpose

- Rob Clark has recently joined as New Zealand Country Manager
- Janet Faulding will retire as General Manager New Zealand at the end of June 2021

SEEK is delighted to announce the appointment of Rob Clark as New Zealand Country Manager, following the retirement of Janet Faulding at the end of June 2021.

SEEK's ANZ Managing Director Kendra Banks said Rob had been chosen after an extensive and competitive search over a number of months.

"We are thrilled to welcome Rob to the SEEK team. Our people are our most important asset, and our focus is on building a culture of customer-focused innovation and commitment to our purpose. Rob's leadership experience, developed in both New Zealand and overseas, will allow SEEK New Zealand to pursue its vision and purpose."

Previously, Rob was the Managing Director New Zealand for The Nielsen Company and has also held senior roles with the same organisation in Europe and parts of Asia, leading sales, account management and marketing functions.

Commenting on his appointment, Rob said he was looking forward to joining the team.

"SEEK is an integral part of the Kiwi job-search process, and the country's most visited employment site. But behind the market leading platform is an incredibly passionate group of people committed to SEEK's purpose. I am thrilled to be joining SEEK, to help the team continue the great work that has been achieved to date."

Kendra Banks also commented on Janet Faulding's lasting contribution to SEEK.

"In her decade of leadership, Janet's vision has grown the connection between hirers and candidates significantly. She has worked tirelessly to support organisations in their quest for talent, and help countless candidates find meaningful careers. We are enormously grateful to Janet's enthusiasm and commitment to the team and would like to thank her for her service."

Rob will be the spokesperson for SEEK's Employment Report, which is a leading indicator into New Zealand's employment market.
